

The Importance of Choosing a Board Certified Pediatric Dentist for Your Child

There is a common misconception around pediatric dental care that oral health isn't quite as important when kids are young, because baby teeth are seen as "disposable". Unfortunately, this is not the case. For kids, it is important to establish healthy oral habits to help prepare them to care for their adult teeth once they come in. What better way to help care for your child's teeth than partnering with a pediatric dentist? Better yet, a pediatric dentist who can go above and beyond to provide your child with specialized care that is specific to their dental needs. There is no shortage of dentists in India, but a board certified pediatric dentist is always the best choice. But, Is there really any difference? Let's take a look at why the extra certification matters and how it can help your little ones.

1. Extra training to better care for your child: A board certified pediatric dentist has completed three years of additional training beyond dental school in order to earn their certification. That extra training means they're better equipped to deal with the unique dental needs of children, including those with special needs. They're also able to handle behavioral issues that may arise during appointments.

2. Commitment to Lifelong learning through Continuing Dental Education (CDE).: Pediatric dentists are constantly learning and training, staying on top of the latest technology and treatments in the field of pediatric dental health. When it comes to your child, you can trust you will be receiving the best kind of care.
3. Knowledge of child psychology and behavior.: Oral care isn't the only topic a board certified pediatric dentist is knowledgeable in— they are also specialists in your child's cognitive development. How can this benefit your child? Well, unlike an average dentist, your board certified pediatric dentist will be able to read a child's dental, emotional, and behavioral needs. They will also know how to create a calm and soothing environment to help kids who feel scared and anxious about the dentist. With their extensive background in child development and psychology, board certified pediatric dentists are skilled at providing gentle and individualized care to any child. From autism to ADHD, a board certified dentist is equipped to help.

In short, a board certified pediatric dentist has the experience and expertise necessary to provide your child with the best possible care.
